AVC. Bilateral absence of the pulmonary artery, heart, and alveoli.
An autopsy case. A 51-year-old man was found dead in the hospital. He had presented with progressive dyspnea in the past month. Chest x-ray demonstrated diffuse parenchymal lung disease, bilateral lower lobe infiltrates, with the center in the right middle lobe. At autopsy, there were no lung parenchymal lesions, but the large cardiopulmonary vessels showed total absence. The right pulmonary artery was exceptionally large, and there were trans-pulmonary collaterals. The left side had a normal right main bronchus. Sternal osteolysis was present. Computed tomographic scan demonstrated no evidence of collateral cardiac pulmonary shunts. The cause of death was determined to be chronic hypoxemia due to pulmonary hypertension. Robert Oweidat Robert Oweidat (born June 2, 1945 in Stuttgart, Germany), is a German-American businessman. He is the founder and Chairman and CEO of SourceGen, a New-York based company that empowers organizations to create leading-edge business processes through use of business process management (BPM), business process automation (BPA) and enterprise application integration (EAI). He is a graduate of the University of Washington and is an honorary professor at the TUM institute for research into learning and behavior. Early life and career

Oweidat studied political science and economics at the University of Washington. While pursuing his undergraduate studies, he worked for the Carnegie Foundation, later joining the Foreign Service. He served in U.S. embassies in Belgrade, Brussels, Cotonou and Tel Aviv, and at the State Department in Washington, D.C. He left the Foreign Service to work in the computer industry, moving to Seattle in the early 1970s and becoming one of the founders of the Computer Electronics Division at Proteon Corporation, a semiconductor manufacturer. 3da54e8ca3
