What's new in Arma 3 Jets:

Chapter 1 Living Under a Coroner's Inquest By Susan Halter Donna Brown found herself sitting in a new pair of reading glasses, studying a massive stack of papers on the massive desk in front of her. She flipped through the stack and scanned the paper, but something seemed odd. She asked her friend Diann to come and take a look. Diann disagreed. She didn't know what the papers were, but she knew that no paper could be so great as to require Mr. Brown to put on reading glasses. She excused herself from the stack of papers and headed down the hall to her boss, Mr. Dilling. "Mr. Dilling," she said. "Diann, why don't you grab a cup of coffee," he answered. "We'll have a chat." The two sat down and Diann gave Dilling a mock salute. "Sir," she said. After coffee was served, he began. "You know we have a new girl with us," he began. "Oh, yes, Diann said you did. Does she turn heads?" "She does. She's one of the more attractive young women I've ever seen." Diann laughed. "You mean in a juvenile branch?" "No, no, in a job branch. In fact, you can make an income for the rest of your life when you hit this branch. See, the information we collect on local people is used to generate leads for our clients, like law firms." "She'll catch you," Diann said. Dilling was getting annoyed. "Listen, Diann. Brown is one of the most important people in this branch." "I know," Diann said. "And do you know why she's important?" Diann stopped laughing. She gave a curt nod. "Yeah, she only gets good information on the dead." "Well, Diann, that's exactly it. Our fortunes are based on her works. You know as well as I do that most of our clients, other than the police department
