AutoCAD LT 3D is designed to support the creation of multidisciplinary models that are consistent in 2D and 3D. It is based on the freely available and opensource software Blender. AutoCAD LT supports parametric construction as well as parametric modeling. Parametric modeling allows objects to be created from a base shape by modifying one or more parameters. These can be grouped in a family of related parametric objects. AutoCAD LT has a number of "hooks" that allow the user to trigger a process that then runs an external command or action. These hooks are typically executed when a task is completed or when a particular event occurs. The predefined hooks include MakeObjects, ConvertObjects, Draw3D, AutoCAD, or Graphics. AutoCAD LT supports access to the Internet and the ability to connect to various web sites. Creating tasks in AutoCAD LT allows easy sharing of tasks with other users. Use of reusable objects allows the software to be extended easily. AutoCAD LT can be used to create multiple views of the same drawing.
