Reconnector

Get yourself reconnected to the Internet. Reconnector is a small software application that solves a common dilemma: You've lost your connection to the Internet and you can't figure out how to get it back. Reconnector solves this problem by checking if you have a working Internet connection at a pre-chosen time. And if you don't, Reconnector resets it for you. But wait, you said: What if your connection is down at a time I want to check it? Re-enter a longer period to be sure that your connection is really down: Reconnector is the perfect tool for situations like that, as it allows you to check your connection only for as long as you want. It will stop it and then start it again automatically after a pre-chosen period of time. For how long is your connection (or the connection from your Internet Service Provider) down? As a crucial parameter you can enter the seconds of the desired check time. What if the connection is down, but won't reset? You can easily tell Reconnector when your connection shouldn't be reset anymore: If your Internet connection isn't working, but it still takes a long time to fail again, enter 0. Reconnector will check if it's not able to connect and if it is, it will simply tell you if it will still try to connect in 10, 20 or 30 seconds. If the connection can't be checked in 30 seconds, it will try to go back to the point where it stopped (actually starts over again). If it can't reschedule the check, it will run one more time after 30 seconds. After 30 seconds the connection has been down for long enough and Reconnector decides to reset it. A few seconds later, your connection gets broken again. If this happens more than 3 times, you get a notice about that. What if I want to check my connection right now? Don't want to wait for a certain time? No problem! Reconnector can check your connection right now. How do I reset the connection? To reset the connection, you can simply choose the check option from the "Tools" menu. Which connection can be reset? You can choose the connection to be reset. There are four main ones to choose from: WiFi, Ethernet (LAN) and Bluetooth
