Hey, just a little something to give my audience a little insight into the concept I am trying to build. So the concept is to create a society that is without any leaders, resources, or at the same time there is no need for any. I have been studying, and I have been lucky enough to meet some nice people who want to see this concept come to life. As of now, there are two main paths, or a series of paths that I am trying to pursue, that can lead us to one. One, is to create a society that would live within the confines of a log cabin. This type of society would be based upon the concept of neighbors helping neighbors, and eliminating the concept of a leader. This path would also include a form of economy that is built around minimalism and self sustainability. The second path is much more complex in nature and involves creating a government where the citizens are the leader. I have spent much time trying to build a society that is like this, so I would be more than happy to take whatever feedback I can get. Comments: Posted by nfrankel at 8:16pm on 11/4/2010 Hmm. If you have the land of Saudi Arabia, you can completely eliminate the concept of money. Just don't get sick, or die. Posted by nfrankel at 8:15pm on 11/4/2010 That is the way it is done back home. Ya. Posted by nfrankel at 8:15pm on 11/4/2010 I wouldn't call a society that didn't have a system
