HyperMotion Technology allows players to be more aggressive, boost an opponent's performance, control defenders in the air and take risks in new ways. No other sports videogame has ever seen player movements on this level. HyperMotion technology lets players control the ball more precisely and accelerate the ball with greater accuracy. The new ball physics model is based on real-world data collected from the precise motion capture suits worn by professional players. The new technology means that players can predict the direction of the ball more accurately, increase their fitness by gaining or losing speed or keeping it constant.

Players can also increase their anticipation and react more quickly in important moments. Players now can control the ball more quickly using new dribbling techniques and use new techniques to beat defenders: backwards spinning or sideways in offensive plays, feints that can lead to a pass or an injury-time tackle. Another new feature is "informational play," a game mechanic that lets teams modify team tactics based on a numerical status indicator; and "Player Rush," which removes the 4v4 bonus-point restrictions on attack. The FIFA World Cup of 2022 is under way and the countdown has started to the kickoff in Qatar on June 9. The host nation is in fine fettle to win the 2022 World Cup. With the help of EA Sports, we have come up with a list of Top 5 Moments From the Real 2018 World Cup, which is the first World Cup since 2002 and take place in Russia. - Top 5 Moments From the Real World Cup 2018 1. Russia Wins After Penalty Play - This year's match between Russia and Saudi Arabia drew particular attention due to its being the last minute of the game. The host nation was cruising to victory against the tournament favorite. However, Russia scored an equalizer through a penalty kick. The match ended in a tie, but the spirit of soccer prevailed as Russia outscored the nation of more than 3 billion people. 2. West Germany Wins 1-0 - There's no value for adrenaline without the risk of heart-attack. Germany's squad stormed into the final, needing only a one-goal margin in a deciding match against Argentina. Germany struck first, but before the kick into goal could even be taken, Argentina equalized off a shot that took a strange trajectory. West Germany walked off with the crown, an achievement few European teams could have produced in the 1990s. 3. Spain Vies for Their Third

Developed by EA Canada, FIFA is the leading sports franchise worldwide. Available on all major consoles and PC, FIFA features over 350 official clubs, and over 500 official players. There have been more than 25 million copies sold to date. For more information about EA SPORTS FIFA or to purchase a copy, visit: www.easports.com/fifa. Meet the New FIFA True AI has arrived in FIFA. Every player makes decisions with gameplay logic, not an algorithm. Every action is based on information drawn from the specific player, the roles he plays, and the situation he is facing. FIFA has never looked so realistic. New Matchday Engine (NME) The new Matchday Engine (NME) recreates the game world every time the match is reset. Complex systems such as weather, stadium conditions, pitch conditions, and pitch surfaces all work together to deliver a real-world experience that looks and feels just like the actual thing. Dynamic Weather FIFA 22 features dynamic weather and night effects based on the season and time of day. This gives fans a personalized experience on any day of the week. Game-Changing Improvements Tactical AI An all-new tactical AI is now in every player, helping them make decisions on and off the pitch. M-Space M-Space ensures the team's tactics are reacting to the actions of every player on the pitch rather than just the opposition. Small-Sided Games FIFA 22 introduces Small-Sided Games which pits your favorite club against two smaller teams. The winner is the team that scores the most goals in a series of five matches. Advanced Vision Engine FIFA 22 features an all-new, improved Vision Engine that is up to 40% more efficient than the previous version. Working in tandem with the advanced new 3D engine, the new Vision Engine drives every aspect of player behavior, decision-making, and player design. Creating a New Generation of Control In-game controls are easy to learn and difficult to master. This year, FIFA will change all that. The new Precision Dribbling controls give players enhanced options for dribbling, ball control, and shooting. With its new Mobile Controls, players can also use the touchscreen controls on their mobile device as an extension of the gamepad, giving you an intuitive interface and great ergonomics. 3rd Party Authentications
