The fire ants, for example, are players. And the Wrigley Field water tower is a player. So the water tower, which adorns the top of the stadium, has been removed temporarily. The Cubs have moved their home and office to a new home in the 6060 building on North Sheffield Avenue. "It is done for an in-progress construction project," the Cubs said via email Friday. The fire ant removal left a giant hole in the stadium. The architectural firm, XHCC, was commissioned to make the changes to the Wrigley field. "Due to the construction project, the water tower and the columns supporting it were temporarily removed for a few days. Any questions can be directed to the architect," the team said.It's that time of year when millions of people across North America and the world take a moment to give thanks. Thanksgiving is a time to celebrate what you have, who you are, and what you are thankful for, for the year to come. It's also a time to give thanks to all you have in the business of giving thanks - The United States Postal Service (USPS). Thanks to the USPS, you can get your holiday cards and packages delivered in time for your friends, family, and loved ones to open them. For people who don't have a house in the United States, it's an important service they can use for deliveries. This same service is also important for folks in many other countries.
