What's new:

Out Tired of the same old characters and fighting styles on the tabletop? Great! Then you need to try these great characters! Some serious skills, some specialized attacks and some epic moves to show that these are not your typical fighters. There's a character for every (slightly) rough situation! You can roll them all in once and use each character for as much conflict and excitement as you like. Oh, and you get to keep them if you like. The following Character Packs will be included in Fight! Fight! Fight!:

Human Battles Rockslide: There's no such thing as a good guy in the countryside...human combat is largely an invitation to a fight where one side can show off their skills and getting to know your opponents helps. Rockslide characters are a respected force on their rocky lands, which is usually a good thing. Each pack includes a character, five equipment, three special items with a price of 100,000 GP, and a full set of six small, artisan-crafted, individual equipment pieces for use with the character. The equipment represents those sturdy little contraptions manned by the human pioneers who first broke the land and peopled the wild.

Fallen Angel: Fallen Angels are the last of their kind, victims of the Changebringer God whose followers are scattered across the world, leaving the Fallen Angel to wander lost and alone. Whether through divine providence or grim misfortune, they are the only pilots of the divine steeds who are still alive. Each pack includes a character, five equipment, three special items with a price of 100,000 GP, and a full set of six small, artisan-crafted, individual equipment pieces for use with the character. The equipment represents those sturdy little contraptions manned by the human pioneers who first broke the land and peopled the wild.

Animal Pack: Born of the soil, Animals make up half of our species. Sleuths, sentries, hunters and owners, they protect the land. Each pack includes a character, five equipment, three special items with a price of 100,000 GP, and a full set of six small, artisan-crafted, individual equipment pieces for use with the character. They stand in guard together out in the field, their tendons tuned to the sound of battle, their tongues tasting the dust in the air and their paws heaving on the ground. Each pack contains one of every basic classed animal: Hunter (Bear), Scout (

Thank you, daniel.god@yahoo.com Q: Allocating the number of groups in a "chunk" for parallel processing of big data Say, I have a matrix of data, say $8K \times 4K$. I can split the matrix into groups, say 100 groups, and then I will apply the transformations on all the groups in parallel. So, I want to find the best number of groups to divide. How to find the best number of groups for my problem, in terms of decrease in communication time? A: You want a number of groups that maximises the speedup, so you try each group size from 1 to 100 (inclusive). Then you compare the results from each case for the same matrix size $8k \times 4k$. This is a quite easy linear search, and you only need to do it once. If your data is distributed randomly over matrix cells, then the result is a measure of the relative speed-up that you can expect as you scale. You can then use this information to choose a global chunk size. 12.
