Community and Content The Imagined Threat of Indicting Donald Trump by Douglas Walker For those of you watching 3Gun Nation live this evening, you all know what's been happening over the past week in Washington and the world. The attempted State indictment of Donald Trump for a crime I was convicted of for which Trump is being tried for is insane. The McCarthy tactics that are being used to try and destroy Trump is another example of a virulent strain of mental illness that is taking control of the Democratic Party. Its like a pack of rabid baying hounds chasing an aging Scottish Terrier. A few will lie down and play dead to be devoured. Most of them will just be too cowardly to get up. A few will get up and run, but be dead within a few hours. More are to come I'm sure. When's the last time we saw anything like this? Honestly, if you haven't been following this from the virtual perspective since it began, I wouldn't blame you. Take a breath. In previous campaigns, I was NEVER a Trump supporter. I'm not even a Republican. That's why I've kept the twitter handle @thedemandar (that's a value judgement on Democrats these days). I've been burned too often by these politicians and their ilk, and let's face it, if the arsehole Democrats can, then so can we. Its better to have lived out of working this way. But the impeachment drive has taken a turn towards sanity. I'm sure my own views will change again over the next couple of months to reflect this. On the other hand, I was asked by many of my 1,000 followers to back Bernie Sanders. This was a no win situation because of the inevitable whoredom I would endure on the issues where I'm on the "right" of the Democrat Party. Most of these mewls are bent over, too, and so are the ones I ordinarily associate with a less bloodthirsty brand of Democrat. So I took a position of indifference. The last election cycle was a humbling experience in so many ways, including making a splitting decision over Democrat vs Republican, and “Progressive” vs “Conservative”. So I to walk a careful line at the moment.
