An elven siege engineer unit activated a mining pod, charging it with miners, aimlessly sparking across the battlefield. When it was close enough to the nearest pyramid, the engineers let it loose, the lengthy process of building it taking some time. Once the pyramid's defenses had been breached, the engineers would scramble up it's smooth surface and hack away at the center with their Multiscope, hammering away at it until the spire finally toppled. A creature the size of a man would emerge from the centre, hissing in anger. The mythic creature was a mass of worms, that had spent their entire lives locked inside the pyramid, creating a thick, wiggling horror that could be seen just as vividly through shadow as it was through light. With the siege engineer unit gone, the pyramid's defences would be open for the middenheim horde to swarm in and attack. 5ec8ef588b
